The Amindivi, Coir Godown building situated in the Marine yard, Mangalore and under the charge of the Port Officer Mangalore, is reported to be a tiled building, built about 100 years back. The tiles of the old pattern, in existence since the construction of the buildings have become old and porous and they absorb water. During the rainy season, the coir inside the godown gets drenched and damaged on account of the unsatisfactory condition of the roof. It is reported that certain old and rotten timber in the roofing and flooring also requires replacing. As the godown is used for storing the Government coir, it is essential that the necessary repairs are executed in the interest of the safety of the Government cargo, as early as possible. The estimates prepared by the Executive Engineer, P.W.D. Mangalore after inspecting the buildings, are enclosed. The estimated cost of repairs comes to Rs.2050/-. I request that the estimates may be approved and returned and sanction may also be accorded for incurring this expenditure. (4)

2. The reports of the Executive Engineer, P.W.D. Mangalore Port Officer, Mangalore and the estimates are enclosed.
